Office Depot, Inc. prepared and displayed a video to its employees explaining the ongoing proxy contest and the recommendations received from proxy advisory firms. The script of the video is attached.

NARRATOR VOICEOVER: A decision on activist investor, Starboard's attempt to replace four current Office Depot Board members with its own nominees will be decided at Office Depot's Annual Shareholder Meeting on August 21st. Leading up to that vote, large institutional investors look to proxy advisory firms, such as ISS & Glass Lewis for guidance.

Elisa Garcia, EVP & General Counsel

Well the proxy advisory firms have recommended three Starboard nominees be appointed to our Board because they believe that some fresh perspectives in the Board Room would be useful.

NARRATOR VOICEOVER: But that change would affect the CEO Selection Committee, comprised of Office Depot and OfficeMax Board members, by removing two Office Depot Directors.

Elisa: What our Board announced was if Marty Evans and Tom Colligan are re-elected, we would invite the three Starboard members that ISS and Glass Lewis designated to our Board.

NARRATOR VOICEOVER: This allows the Selection Committee to stay on track to name a new CEO for the joint company in September. It also gives large institutional investors a reason to vote for Office Depot's slate of nominees using the White Card.

Elisa: I believe the investors that we've spoken to so far understand what we're trying to do and they welcome it. They welcome that we've given them another opportunity to still get some fresh perspectives in the board room, but not disrupt the CEO selection process.

NARRATOR VOICEOVER: Because deciding on the new CEO is critical to the merger.

Elisa: Once a CEO is named, that person will be able to look at the information that both sides have gathered and be able to think more strategically for the company moving forward. And that's something that's very difficult for us to do now because we really can't share confidential and critical information.

NARRATOR VOICEOVER: And begin setting a course for the new company—and leading it's associates—regardless of who's sitting on the Board.

Elisa: Well, I don't know that it will affect our associates day to day. I think that our strategy is our strategy. So it will be business as usual for our associates, the Board Room may just become a little more interesting.

OFFICE DEPOT SAFE HARBOR STATEMENT

This communication may contain forward-looking statements within the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 concerning Office Depot, the merger and other transactions contemplated by the merger agreement, and the outcome of the 2013 Annual Meeting. These statements or disclosures may discuss goals, intentions and expectations as to future trends, plans, events, results of operations or financial condition, or state other information relating to Office Depot, based on current beliefs of management as well as assumptions made by, and information currently available to, management. Forward-looking statements generally will be accompanied by words such as "anticipate," "believe," "plan," "could," "estimate," "expect," "forecast," "guidance," "intend," "may," "possible," "potential," "predict," "project" or other similar words, phrases or expressions. These forward-looking statements are subject to various risks and uncertainties, many of which are outside of Office Depot's control. Therefore, investors and shareholders should not place undue reliance on such statements. Factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from those in the forward-looking statements include adverse regulatory decisions; failure to satisfy other closing conditions with respect to the merger; the risks that the new businesses will not be integrated successfully or that Office Depot will not realize estimated cost savings and synergies; Office Depot's ability to maintain its current long-term credit rating; unanticipated changes in the markets for its business segments; unanticipated downturns in business relationships with customers or their purchases from Office Depot; competitive pressures on Office Depot's sales and pricing; increases in the cost of material, energy and other production costs, or unexpected costs that cannot be recouped in product pricing; the introduction of competing technologies; unexpected technical or marketing difficulties; unexpected claims, charges, litigation or dispute resolutions; new laws and governmental regulations. The foregoing list of factors is not exhaustive. Investors and shareholders should carefully consider the foregoing factors and the other risks and uncertainties that affect Office Depot's business described in its Annual Report on Form 10-K, Quarterly Reports on Form 10-Q, Current Reports on Form 8-K and other documents filed from time to time with the SEC. Office Depot does not assume any obligation to update these forward-looking statements.
